looking forward to learning a lot about this wonderful piece of history.

An exert from Seamus Cullens

website" In 1812 Thomas Wogan

Browne died at 'Castlebrown' and the property passed to his brother General Michael Wogan

Browne who was a famous military officer on the continent.

The following year he sold

'Castlebrown' to the Jesuits who established a college in the building. The Jesuits restored the building to its original name of Clongowes Wood and appointed Fr. Kenny as the first rector. The college opened in 1814 as a boarding school for boys from mainly well to do Catholic families. It brought considerable benefits to the area both commercially and in the area of employment."

All are welcome! Please come ,meet your neighbours, have a chat enjoy our company!!!
